Executive Field Summary

Heavy-duty US manufacturer of PTO-driven truckmount extraction rigs (XT / R-Series) and direct-drive van extraction systems built for high-volume commercial flood extraction and carpet restoration.

Core Capabilities & Restoration Workflow Fit

Box-truck PTO high-CFM vacuum/heat extraction rigs, dual-wand simultaneous commercial water extraction, onboard waste/fresh tanks, and stainless-steel precision construction.

Corporate Ownership & M&A Verification Note

Independent privately held US manufacturer (Aero Tech Manufacturing, Salt Lake City, UT; ISO-certified fabrication).

Procurement Due-Diligence & Field Watch-Outs

Model chassis acquisition, CDL/GVWR fleet compliance, preventive PTO maintenance schedules, and payback vs. slide-in van truckmounts based on commercial water-extraction volume.

Ecosystem & Software / Distribution Integrations

Standalone heavy extraction fleet platform; pairs with commercial flood-pumper wands, weighted subsurface extractors, and large-loss desiccant drying.

Practitioner Frequently Asked Questions

Q: Why do large commercial restoration firms invest in Aero Tech PTO truckmounts?
Aero Tech rigs deliver extreme vacuum lift, continuous high-temperature water, and multi-wand simultaneous extraction—dramatically shortening emergency standing-water removal on commercial losses.

Q: Does Aero Tech build van-mounted systems as well as box-truck rigs?
Yes; alongside its flagship XT box-truck systems, Aero Tech manufactures the DDS Direct Drive van system and R-Series configurations.

Q: Where are Aero Tech truckmounts manufactured?
Aero Tech manufactures its equipment in-house in Salt Lake City, Utah.
