Executive Field Summary

Botanical restoration chemical brand producing EPA-registered thyme-oil disinfectants (Decon 30, Botanical Disinfectant) and plant-based degreasers requiring no synthetic-chemical PPE warnings on label.

Core Capabilities & Restoration Workflow Fit

EPA-registered broad-spectrum botanical disinfectants (Decon 30), ready-to-use wipes, Atomic Degreaser for fire/soot cleanup, and zero-rinse food-contact surface approval.

Procurement Due-Diligence & Field Watch-Outs

Verify dwell-time requirements (10-minute vs. 30-second claims by pathogen on EPA master label) and compare per-gallon diluted cost against quaternary ammonium antimicrobials on large Category 3 losses.

Ecosystem & Software / Distribution Integrations

Widely distributed across Aramsco, Abatix, Inline Distributing, and ICP ProProgram distributors; compatible with ULV cold foggers and pump sprayers.

Practitioner Frequently Asked Questions

Q: Who actually owns Benefect—RPM or ICP Group?
ICP Group (ICP Building Solutions Group) acquired Benefect Corporation on March 13, 2019; Benefect's live website and official X account (@ICP_BSG) confirm ICP Group ownership, not RPM.

Q: Why do restoration crews specify Benefect Decon 30 on occupied residential losses?
Its thyme-oil active ingredient carries EPA Category IV (lowest toxicity) classification, allowing rapid sanitizing around children, pets, and sensitive occupants without harsh synthetic odors.

Q: Does Benefect cover fire-soot cleaning as well as microbial remediation?
Yes; Benefect's Atomic Degreaser and Impact Cleaner target heavy smoke, grease, and soot residues alongside its antimicrobial disinfectants.
